

March 2017

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing to you as a final year student of Agricultural Business Management at the University of Newcastle, UK. I am currently completing research on the Hemp Industry in the UK and Europe with a particular focus on Hmp bioplastic products. I am passionate about sustainability and enthusiastic to apply myself to the development of novel and innovate uses of hemp and as such would be very interested to hear of any upcoming positions you may have.

During my work and travel experience I have been fortunate enough to engage and work with people from many countries and cultures. This has given me excellent communication skills, allowing me to work with and lead teams from different backgrounds successfully. During my time living and training with the Shaolin monks in China I matured greatly and gained intangible skills such as discipline, focus, compassion and patience. My teaching experience has improved my planning and presentation skills as well as helping me identify areas where cultural differences or personalities may impact progress. My varied work experience has given me many transferrable skills including teamwork and effective communication but has also allowed me to take a step back at times to take a management perspective and subsequent leadership roles.

I believe your work in this industry is essential in contributing to the much-needed societal changes that can ensure a sustainable way of life on our planet. I would love an opportunity to work within this field as a new graduate and feel my life experience coupled with my University module choices have equipped me well

Thanking you for your consideration and I look forward to hearing from you.

Regards,

Sam Laing
